

ABSTRACT

Methodology, systems, and media associated with automatically configuring an image forming device to process alerts are described. One exemplary system may include an image forming device configured to communicate setup data with a configuration server and to selectively configure the image forming device based, at least in part, on the setup data.

5